The DMASA is pleased to announce that the judging panel for the 2020 Assegai Awards has been selected. These individuals have been carefully chosen by the DMASA and have the collective local and international expertise required to judge all work from the marketing sector.

They will continue to recognise the incredible creativity of local designers and to challenge the perception of direct marketing in South Africa at the Assegai Awards this year.

Over 50 judges will be carefully sifting through the entries over two days. The variety of backgrounds and expertise of the judges on the panel will ensure consistency and balance throughout the selection process. The first stage of judging is set to begin on Thursday, 17 September 2020. The second stage of judging will take place on Wednesday, 23 September 2020.

The depth and experience of the panel will ensure that the standards of the Assegai Awards remain a priority while allowing for work to be seriously assessed and appraised.
