

Rocket Creative launches funky new JelliBean Promo & Activation Table

Issued by Rocket Creative Design & Display

3 Sep 2013

The Rocket Creative team has been having some fun originating their brand new activation specific promo and eventing table, the aptly named JelliBean. This funky design has been in the conceptual pipeline for quite some time and with all R&D complete the unit is now available to the market.

"The JelliBean becomes the largest portable table element to date featuring the same unique manufacturing process as our recent innovative MidiLITE and MaxiLITE Elliptical Plinths, providing a superbly aesthetic, modular and re-brandable promotional unit. The 1100mm (w) x 600mm (d) work surface forms an encompassing jelly bean 'wrap around' shape around the promoter and features fully concealed central and base shelves, an absolute must for promoters stock storage during activations," explains Richard Nilson, Rocket Creatives founder and design originator.

The unit features a solid rollable printed panel with a protective over-laminate for maximised durability during activation operations. The modular design format and rollable graphic panel allows for effortless rebranding of the table structure, allowing countless re-brands on the same structure and therefore delivers a superior ROI for clients wanting a superb and ultra slick aesthetic for their on-going promotional activity.

Rocket Creative has launched the product with unparalleled features at keen introductory pricing for a limited period only for the up-coming silly season so get yours now!
