

A.T. Kearney expands South African office

International strategic management consultancy firm expands its South African office as a commitment to growth in the country. A.T. Kearney has appointed two senior management team members in a move to support private sector clients and government.

Theo Sibiya joins the team as partner and executive director, bringing with him 15 years of consulting experience. Sibiya has specialised in corporate and operations strategy in both public and private sectors across Africa.

The consultancy will also welcome Dinesh Kumar as principal with a specific focus on further growing supply chain and sourcing in Africa. Kumar has over 20 years' of experience in supply chain and procurement across the consumer goods, pharmaceuticals, petrochemicals, oil and gas, and telecommunications industries, as well as public sector.

Both Sibiya and Kumar frequently lecture at universities and are committed to further support A.T. Kearney's goal to build a diverse and growing pool of consultants across the continent.
