

Homegrown winner

Oscar-winning South African film Tsotsi was co-ordinated by local film and TV business Sasani Film, shot in Global Access studios and the cameras, lights and grips were provided by the Movie Camera Company. Processing was done by FilmLab and post-production undertaken by ZSE TV. Sasani CEO, James Whitehouse, says: "This has been a great day for the South African film industry, and reinforces the fact that we are capable of producing world-class content, with world-class facilities."
