The Rocket Creative team endeavours to live by the ethos, 'Simple Yet Sophisticated'. Granted, simple to the Rocket Creative team is clearly not simple to all, but that is because the team are experts in their field of being ultra creative and original, solution focussed and results orientated.

In identifying that although graphic dressing of windows is a major requirement within the retail industry, the logistics involved in the jobs become a difficult and potentially campaign threatening issue when dealing with challenging shopping centre and retail store management, as well as the costs associated with needing to have skilled installers on site before or after business hours whilst stores are not open to the public for installations as well as afterwards for removal of the graphics once the campaign has been concluded.

Rocket Creative is delighted to have originated the idea, manufactured the prototype, thoroughly tested and now rolled out their pioneering VS System to a host of vogueish Shesha and fashionable Boogaloos stores in major centres nationwide for the trendsetting audio brand Skullcandy. The system delivers on all of the above mentioned requirements and more, offering superb visual impact, effortless ease of use, flexibility, life span and thus maximum return on investment. Now tried and tested we are now very excited to offer the system to the industry.

Richard Nilson, Rocket Creative head idea generator explains, "The VS System represents a graphic suspension solution that can be accessorised with a variety of printed substrates, but for window applications the most suitable is a fabric graphic visual. The system works off a mechanism which securely attaches to store front windows and other smooth surfaces. System solutions are designed per drop to accommodate the specific size and mass of each fabric. Installation is effortless and a 1500mm (w) x 2500mm (h) unit will take five minutes to mount and maximum one minute to remove. This maximises an installation team's effectiveness in getting to multiple locations quickly for tight campaign roll outs, which is a crucial element in containing costs bearing in mind the consistently escalating labour, fuel and toll road costs."

Other uses are with the system accessorised with solid boards up to 10mm thick for a variety of uses such as in-store counters, car showrooms, pointer boards and way finding solutions amongst others.
